1903
E. W. Nelson

Notes
Mexico City —

[Written in cursive, difficult to read.]

Choral music in Low German, quite unlike the ordinary German style. I prefer... found with dead in it. I heard in the tent that much of the country south of this latitude to the south side of Fort Victoria was occupied by the British troops. I thought the country, because of its altitude, could not be a suitable place for raising the British flag on account of the high wind and extreme cold. We decided to proceed on our journey without making any halt or examination in the country, which was more suitable for raising the British flag.

On this day we continued our journey, and arrived at 7 a.m.
the next day near the town of Victoria, where we
continued our journey.

Neville and I continued to Nevilleville, where we remained for a few days until the weather became
terrible, and the
journey became uncomfortable.

Nevilleville is a
dependent town
south of Victoria,
where we
remained for
some time,
but the weather
continued
to be severe.

The weather was
terrible, and
we
continued
our journey
until we
arrived at Victoria.

Victoria is a
large town
south of Nevilleville,
where we
remained for
several
days.

The weather
continued
to be very
severe,
and we
remained
at Victoria
for some time,
but the
weather
continued
to be terrible.

We
continued
our
journey
until we
arrived at Victoria, where
we
remained for
several
time.

The weather
continued
to be very
severe,
and we
remained
at Victoria
for
some
time,
but the
weather
continued
to be
terrible.

We
continued
our
journey
until we
arrived at Victoria, where
we
remained for
several
time,
but the
weather
continued
to be very
severe,
and we
remained
at Victoria
for
some
time,
but the
weather
continued
to be
terrible.